May is almost a memory...

What a busy time of year. I cannot believe it is almost June and with that comes a series of concerts, field trips and culminating events for some of the learning projects the students have been working on. On Monday we look forward to the grade 7 showcase of learning where they will be sharing their "Genius Hour" inquiry work. Students have chosen their focus, come up with guiding questions and produced an artifact that represents the learning they have done.

I know it is a time to celebrate the progress students have made this year so there will be a variety of activities each week, so please watch these updates as well as the individual notices sent home to families.

Sincerely, Mr Maxwell and Ms. Singh

There is a lot of input that goes into class building and we try to create classes that will provide the support and social attributes that are best for each child. We know that having social connections is incredibly important and trying to balance the educational needs with the social emotional needs of each child is a challenging thing. That being said if there are peer dynamics that you think we need to be aware of, such as friendships that are crucial or peers that would be detrimental to your child's schooling next year, please feel free to forward those to me, by email, before Friday May 30, 2025. We do our best to accommodate the complex needs of each child and appreciate your support and input into this process. ALSO – if you know that your child will NOT be here next year, please let us know so that we can help with their transition to their next school.

At Rockheights, we use our unique strengths and challenges to build an empowered community.
